

A scatter plot on a white background with a black border. It contains two sets of data points: green and blue. The green points are more numerous and form a large, somewhat irregular shape in the lower half of the plot. The blue points are fewer and are scattered throughout the upper half, with some appearing within the green cluster's area. The points are small, solid circles.

