

A scatter plot on a white background with a black border. It displays two clusters of data points. The first cluster, represented by blue dots, is located on the left side of the plot and is very dense, with many points overlapping. The second cluster, represented by green dots, is located on the right side of the plot and is more spread out. There is a small region of overlap between the two clusters in the center.

